Phytochemical Society of Europe

3-EuSPMF aims to see into the recent progress in the area of phytochemicals and their implementation in medicine and food. The demand for high-quality food products that have beneficial effects on human health encourages researchers to intensively study natural products. In the light of these principles, we welcome scientists in the various fields to present their latest research and provide an excellent platform for exchanging ideas, discussing challenges, and setting up new research collaborations.

The official language of the conference is English

The conference will be organized on the following main scientific topics of interest

TOPICS

I – Natural resources of bioactive compounds

II – Bioactive compounds and human health

III – Bee products-treasure trove of bioactivity

IV – Novel perspectives of phytochemical use in contemporary medicine

V – From farm to fork

VI – Food and agro waste recovery

VII – Phytochemicals in functional foods

VIII – Analytical methods

IX – Sensory attributes of food

X – Food safety and quality
